

3 Questions to Help You Find Your Career Path

It can be hard to know what your future should look like. As you're thinking about your career path, the best thing you can do is immerse yourself in it – do an internship, talk to people who work in your field of interest, read articles about relevant topics and look through job descriptions for positions that interest you.

As you find out more and more about the careers you're interested in, continually ask yourself the three questions on this sheet. Take notes as you have new revelations.

What am I passionate about? What do I love to do, see, talk about and read about?

What would my dream job look like? What type of environment do I want to work in, what do I want to wear to the office and what kind of tasks do I enjoy most?

How does this job fit into my life? Will I be able to get the education and experience needed for this?
